

Library Board Pleas for Building

Wave 15 Mar 1984

HEBER CITY, March 7 (LRJ) City Council members heard a plea from the Wasatch County Library to consider its desire to use city property behind and to the west of the County Courthouse for a county library.

The City had previously heard petition from the County Commissioners to the same purpose, and for a $1000 deposit had given the county an option to secure the property for the library purpose. A stipulation made by the City was that the property would transfer only for the purpose of a library. Other purposes would not validate the purchase contract.

The Library Board felt that "a new library is essential to the continued grow of our community and its citizens. Plans have been developed through the investment of tax money to make this a reality. The County Commission has agreed to sponsor a bond election to give the citizens an opportunity to give the green light..." to the project.

The City felt that it could support the sale of the property based upon the validation of a bond approval and a satisfactorily drawn sales contract between the county and the city that would protect both parties and provide continued parking for citizens.

Local contractors met with the City to air problems concerning availability of the Building Inspector, Richard Carlile, to inspect within a "working day." Mr. Carlile, the contractors who were present, and the City reviewed the needs of all three parties and indicated a willingness to work together and try to solve the alleged problems.

The City moved to adopt the most recently published Building Code as a basis for its building standards. Also included in the motion was the establishment of a board that could hear the concerns of builders as they met situations that should be considered locally.

Garth Wilkinson of Slayride Productions introduced himself to the council and reported that his company will be filming in the valley soon. He indicated that little or no interruption of local life patterns will occur, but that the filming should bring some dollars to the county.

Reports were also made on flood prevention tactics that are being considered and planned. Information on flood preparation was presented.
